Baptismal Affairs

Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock the baptism of little Miss Wanda Mary Allen Danne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Danne, was impressively solemnized in Christ Episcopal church by the Rev. John E. Ewell, rector in charge. The god parents were Mrs. Thomas Moore Jackson, Mrs. John E. Ewell and Mr. Harold Danne, father of the child.

At 6 o'clock a beautifully appointed christening dinner was served in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Danne on West Main street. The table had for its appropriate centerpiece a pyramid christening cake. The snowy icing was heavily frosted and encrusted with cupids, gold rings and lady slippers, symbols to bring good luck to the young lady during her future life. The place cards were unique and amusing little postcards of the young hostess, giving souvenirs of the occasion. Surrounding the elaborate christening cake were clusters of long stemmed pink carnations and maiden ferns in silver holders and under the brilliant, tonic light formed a pleasing picture.

Covers were laid for the Rev. and Mrs. John E. Ewell, Mr. and Mrs. Mayberry Harrison, Mrs. H. F. Criss and Miss Garrard. Later in the evening other guests called to offer their best wishes to little Miss Danne.

FALL FASHIONS ARE DISTINCTIVE
They Find Authentic Representation at This Store

Originality marks Autumn Fashions. Styles are clever—distinctive—unlike those of any former season.

The Fall suits are chic and natty. They have coats of short and medium length and narrow skirts frequently adorned with braid, bands and buttons. Separate cloaks are mainly built on graceful, practical models which envelop the entire figure.

The new dresses merit unstinted praise. Upon them fashion has lavished a wealth of beauty. In charm of material and trimming and in variety of design they surpass the best of all previous seasons. The new skirts are a radical departure from anything heretofore shown—but women will like them—that is certain.

Variety is the keynote of the new waist styles, blouses of rich Persian printed materials are particularly fetching.

A display of Autumn fashions which is rich in interest and good buying opportunities makes a visit to this store at the present time a true treat for the women who love beautiful apparel and profitable expenditure of time for the economist.
